Having been engaded in the drug pusiness for several years, I do not hesitate to pronounce Hurleya Sarsaparilla the best preparation now in use.

GEONGE MULLIKIN.

ORAGON, Ind., Nov. 23, 1854.

Da. HURLEY—Sir. Your Sarsaparilla certainly discreves to supercede all other preparations of that medicine. Heretofore, the unsatisfactory results obtained from the use of Sarsaparilla, depended upon a want of skill in making proper selections from the different qualities found in our markets, and that which has been vended in the form of noatrums has generally been prepared by innovant, incompetent and mercenary quacks, which if contained in the sufferer in a much worse condition than before taking it. Having tested your Sersaparilla, and he suggested to say that it is free from the imperior commending in to the conflore of the profession and to the affected public, and feel perfectly suiffed they will readize everything from it that a to be derived from the use of Sarsaparilla.

HUMOROUS.

An Unexpected Race.
In one of the larger towns of Worcester county, Massachusetts, used to live a clergyman, whem we will eall Ridewell. He was one of the Baptist persuasion, and very rigid in his ideas of moral propriety. He had in his employ an old negro named Pompey, and if this latter individual was note or trict in his morals as his master, he wes at least a very curning dog, and passed in the reverend household for a pattern of propriety.—Pompey was a useful servant, and the old clergyman his never heckitated to trust him with the most importatit bullness.

Now it so happoned that there were so they have been and in propriety and he old clergyman thus spoke. He cannot not completely and he old clergyman thus spoke he started on towards the scene. The horses of the wicked men! completely completely completely completely completely completely completely.—Pompey was a useful servant, and the old clergyman his rever heckitated to trust him with the most importatit bullness.

Now it so happoned that there were seed to the schard, 'Children of sin and shame—'Children of sin and shame—'Come on, ole hos,' cried one of the sharifety from the habit of stealing Old Morgan from the color of the church the members conferred together, and the old clergyman and impressive manner. So the party role backto the solenger man's house, but none of the brethern trust when the deacons shook their heads in a very solemn and impressive manner.

So the party role backto the solenger man's house, but none of the brethern two labers, we will not take legal action against them.—Oh, that my own land should be desecrated thus!' for it was indeed a portion of his farm.

As the good clergyman thus spoke, he started on towards the scene. The horse well has home and on the fact and impressive manner.

So

Now it so happened that there were dwelling in about the town; sundry individuals who had not the fear of the dread-ful penalties which Mr. Ridewell preacha long while the Sunday evening races a long while the Sunday evening races were carried on there without detection by the officers, or others who flight have blergyman, tugging at the reins with all his flight:

stopped them.
It also happened that the good old clergy Hen dwned one of the best horses in Morgan stock, with a mixture of Arabian blood in his veins; and it was generally known that few beasts could pass hith on the road. Mr. Ridewell, with a dignity becoming his celling stouth declared that the flectness of his horse flever afforded him gratification, and that, tor his awn, he would as lief have any other. Yet money could not buy his Morgan, nor could any amount of argument persuade him to swap.

The church was so near the good clergyman's dwelling that he always walked the second where the petrified deacons where standing with eyes and mouth wide open. Don't stop,' shouted one of the wicked judges who now recognized parson Ridewell, and suspected his business, and who also saw into the secret of Old Morgan's joining the race. Don't stop,' he shouted again: 'it's a two mile heat this time. Reep right on, parson. You are good foit another mile. Now you go—and off it is!'

iquity.
On the following Sabbath after dinner, Mt. Ridewell ordered Pomp to bring up old Morgan and put him in the stable. The order was obeyed though not with out misgivings on the part of the faithful negro. As soon as the afternoon servisces were closed, the two deacons and some others of the members the church send us word and we'll be ready for you. accompanied the minister home, together Good bye?

It is the most fligrant piece of abonination that ever coffie to my knowledge, said the indignant clergyman as they

'It is, most assuredly,' answered one of the deacons.

'Horse-racing on the Sa bbath!' uttered

'Dreadful' echoed the second descon. Dreadful' echoed the second deacon.
And so the conversation went on until they reached the top of a gentle eminence which overlocked the plain where the racing was carried on, and where some dozen horsemen, with a score of lookers on were assembled. The sight was one that chilled the good parson to his soul. He remained motionless until he had made but the whole alarming truth then turning to his companions:

And at length they shook their he doubt.

'It's very strange,' said one. 'Very, answered the second. 'Remarkably,' suggested the 'On my soul, brethern,' spoke of the temperature of the deacons shook their heads is solemn and impressive manner. The brethern looked at each of the deacons shook their heads is solemn and impressive manner.

won't stand your abuse.

When we heard that you had determined to try if your horse would not best us all, we agreed among ourselves that if you came we would let you in. We have done so, and you have won the race in a two mile heat. Now let that

As the wietch thus spoke; he turned As the wretch thus spoke, he turned his horse's head, and before the astonished preacter could utter a word; the whole party had ridden away out of hesring.—It was sometime beforeone of the churchmen ceuld speak. They knew not what to say. Why should their minister's horse have joined in the race without some permission from his master? They knew how much he set by the animal, and at length they shook their heads with doubt.

'Very,' answered the second.
'Remarkably,' suggested the third.
'On mysoul, brethern,' spoke Ridewell,

'I can't make it out.'

The brethren looked at each other, and the deacons shook their heads in a very stir your stubips. Now we go.

'Alas! O. my wicked—,

'All residy!' shouted he who led the affair, cutting the minister short. 'And'

So par on Ridewell was cleared, but it off it is!'

And the word for starting was given.

Old Morgan knew that word too well, for no sooner dld it fall upon his ears than he stuck out his nose, and with one wild race horses. This spot was hidden from a long while the Sunday evening races were carried on there without detection by the officers, or others who flight have heart grew warmer; and finally he could laugh with right good will when he spoke of his unexpected rate. Be sure there was no more Sabbath rateing in that town.
